

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the Operations Leadership position in Financial Crime at Monzo Bank.

My career has been built on managing complex operational processes in highly regulated financial environments. At Morgan Stanley, I spent 2.5 years in Prime Brokerage operations, where I managed trade settlement, reconciliation, and counterparty payments while ensuring strict compliance with FX reporting requirements. This role demanded meticulous attention to detail, risk awareness, and the ability to identify anomalies that could indicate potential issues. These skills directly translate to financial crime prevention and detection.

My background is further strengthened by my earlier experience at Mphasis, where I focused on process optimization and data validation across multiple stakeholder groups. I developed strong analytical capabilities using Excel and VBA to automate controls and streamline operations, which is essential for scaling financial crime programs effectively.

My MSc in Investment and Risk Finance (Distinction) provides me with a structured understanding of financial crime risks, compliance frameworks, and regulatory requirements. Combined with my practical experience managing month-end closes and high-pressure reconciliations, I bring both theoretical knowledge and hands-on operational expertise.

What excites me about this opportunity at Monzo is the chance to lead operations in a dynamic fintech environment where strong financial crime controls are fundamental to customer trust and business integrity. I am confident my track record of delivering operational excellence in regulated settings, coupled with my analytical mindset and stakeholder management experience, will enable me to make a meaningful contribution to your team.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my experience can support Monzo's financial crime objectives.

Yours sincerely,
Nidhi Shetty
